Breast & Oncologic Surgeon Announces Retirement
Carrie Ann Thoms, MD, Retires from FVSA

Part of the FVSA team since 2018, Carrie Ann Thoms, MD, is retiring from practice on March 1, 2020. Dr. Thoms specialized in breast and oncologic surgery for three decades, advocating for advanced treatment options throughout her career. She was the recipient of the National Cancer Institute's Silver Certificate of Excellence and also led the development of the American Society of Breast Surgeons' (ASBrS) award-winning website, breast360.org. Dr. Thoms earned her medical degree from the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center in Denver and served as a fellow with the American College of Surgeons. She received specialty certifications in breast ultrasound and stereotactic biopsy procedures and became a Certification Reviewer with the ASBrS for these programs.
